

The Federal Communications Commission

Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I subscribe to the TracFone cell phone service, because it is the only cell phone service that I can afford. I urge you to reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund. I am concerned that this proposal will make my current service unaffordable.

Under the flat fee proposal you are considering, people who make few long distance calls and only have a cell phone for emergency use would pay the same as people that make many calls. In other words, people like myself and primarily residential customers would bear the same universal service fund burden as a high-volume residential or business customers. This is not equitable!

I primarily use my cell phone for emergencies that involve safety and security. I don't want to lose these benefits so that big businesses and others, that make hundreds of calls, pay less than their fair share. I urge you to reject the proposal to move the USF collection system to a flat-fee.

Sincerely,

Ronald Rogers
